Organization’s profile
AEGEE (European Students’ Forum) –with its 13 000 members- is one of the biggest youth organisations in Europe. On a local level, it is represented with smaller or bigger antennae in 200 European cities, from Las Palmas to Moscow, while the head office functions in Brussels.
AEGEE organizes multiple exchange programs, international trainings and conferences, but is -without doubt- best-known for the Summer University project. Within the framework of this initiative, participants are able to spend two or more weeks abroad in the company of other young people from all over Europe.
AEGEE-Budapest is the third biggest antennae in the network with almost 300 members. Despite the international opportunities, it also provides a wide range of local programs during the university year. Three working groups and several project are operating continuously through the semester and are opened not just to the active members, but also to anyone who is interested and willing to contribute.
If anyone would like to join us, the Freshmen camp and Local Training Course (LTC) are great opportunities to gain some more information about the organisation and how it works on a daily basis.
Both of the above mentioned are weekend-long programs held twice a year, with the aim to provide professional improvement and also a chance to meet our members. Their colorful schedule includes presentations about the organisation, professional workshops, round-table discussions and teambuilding games.
From now on, AEGEE-Budapest is also an official sending organisation in the European Voluntary Service (EVS).
